THE BUZZ

The Issue: Abortion is believed to have “infected” many African-American communities decreasing about 1/3 of our current population. Being a minority race, this controversial subject brings about a great argument. Texas abortion restrictions are on the verge of closing abortion clinics. Many women who are asked their views on abortion choose the liberalist standpoint of pro-choice, and disagree strongly with the government regulating/restricting what goes on with their bodies.

their bodies.

Question: When is abortion ever acceptable? Are you pro-choice or pro-life?

Jonathan Johnson - "I feel that abortion is never acceptable. There are so many other options, including adoption. I'm pro-life because as humans we didn't give life, so we don't have the right to take it away."

Pro-life activists believe that every human life is precious and that the government has a responsibility to protect it. They argue that the right to life is a fundamental right that should not be taken away by the state.

Pro-choice activists believe that women should have the right to decide for themselves what happens in their bodies. They argue that the government should not interfere with a woman's personal choices.

The debate over abortion is a complex one, involving issues of personal freedom, government intervention, and the value of human life. Both sides have strong arguments and passionate supporters.
