

Style Profile...

Written by Grace Boateng
Wednesday, 06 March 2013 00:00

Untitled document

First Lady Michelle Obama has become a political and fashion force to be reckoned with. It is obvious she has no plans of slowing down this second term. In the first couple months of 2013 Michelle Obama has already been spotted dancing on Late Night with Jimmy Fallon, and was a surprise presenter for Best Picture at the Oscar Awards.

Four years ago Michelle Obama looked sweet, hopeful, and idealistic in a custom ivory Jason Wu gown. The floor length, ethereal, one-shoulder ensemble sparkled and swept across the dance floor as it was decorated with Swarovski crystals and flower appliqués. That event made the young Jason Wu a household name and favorite designer for our First Lady.

Style Profile...

Written by Grace Boateng

Wednesday, 06 March 2013 00:00

Michelle Obama's red gown was a statement piece, while Barack Obama's tuxedo was a classic choice. The white gown Michelle wore in 2009 was also a notable choice.