Steve Harvey celebrated his 56th birthday recently, but he got a very unexpected surprise cleverly orchestrated by his talk show producers.

He received a phone call and the person on the other end said, “I just have one question, do you still love me, baby?”

Almost immediately, the retired stand up comedian burst into tears and later explained the heap of emotions.

“I was 26 years old, struggling. I didn’t have nothing and these people owned a furniture store in Cleveland. They took me in and gave me a contract with my little carpet cleaning company. When I became a comedian at 27, I didn’t have money to travel. They gave me an account at their travel agency and I ran up a bill that was id="mce_marker"1,000 just traveling and try to make it. Those people right there, they helped me out!”
