

2014 NFL Draft moved from April to May

Written by Nicholas Norman
Wednesday, 29 May 2013 00:00

The NFL announced Tuesday that due to a scheduling conflict at Radio City Music Hall, the 2014 NFL Draft will be held May 8-10 in New York. The draft usually takes place the last weekend of April.

According to key league officials, no decision has been made regarding the dates of the 2015 draft and beyond. A variety of alternatives are being explored. Some of these include holding the draft at other locations in the New York area and even in other cities.

There will not be any significant changing in any other NFL offseason events next year. The Scouting Combine in Indianapolis is scheduled for Feb 18-25 2014.

The NFL announced that the change in date of the draft will have no effect on when rookies may begin to report to their clubs, the dates of the offseason programs or the length of the offseason programs.